

Anubis is an Egyptian god commonly associated with mummification and the afterlife.

He is depicted in many Egyptian artworks as a human with the head of a black dog.

It is said that Anubis would weigh the heart of the deceased, to determine their place in the afterlife.